

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

soothes irritable throats, heals inflamed bronchial tubes, and quiets congestion in the lungs. This is why it so quickly controls these old coughs and prevents pneumonia and consumption.

"I was troubled with a very hard cough which I could not get rid of. When I read of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral I sent to Johannesburg and procured a bottle. It completely cured me, and I have many comrades here who have had hard coughs cured in the same way."

— Wm. Sessions, Company C, Second Royal Berks. Reg., Nel's Spruit, Transvaal, S. Africa.

There are many substitutes and imitations. Beware of them! Be sure you get Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Two sizes. Large and small bottles.

The only desirable means of reaching the Volcano. Connections at Mountain View with stages daily—morning trains going; afternoon trains returning. Fare from Hilo for the round trip $5. This route is through Olua plantation, the largest in Hawaii, virgin forests of koa and wild ferns, and through many coffee farms.

The natural wonders of Puna make that district the most interesting spot in Hawaii. One can spend a most delightful day exploring the underground caves, swimming in the famous Hot Springs and resting on the cool shores of Green Lake.

Excursion tickets between all points are sold on Saturdays and Sundays, good returning, until the following Monday noon.

Commutation tickets, good for twenty-five rides between any two points, and thousand mile tickets are sold at very low rates.

BAD EFFECTS OF ROENTGEN RAYS

Burns, Dilatations of Blood-Vessels, Scars From Application to Skin.

It is evident that we are as yet far from having attained to completeness of knowledge in regard to the effects which may be produced by the Roentgen rays. That they may cause very unpleasant and slowly healing "burns" is now well known, as also that these effects may not show themselves for some time after the application. Again, it has been shown that in some cases, even when no ulceration is produced, considerable pigmentation may be set up, so that it may occasionally happen that in the attempt to get rid of a degree of hirsuteness which may be, comparatively speaking, not a matter of great consequence, an amount of pigmentation may be produced which may be most annoying and may last for a long time. Lately, however, another unfortunate result of the rays has come to light, namely, the development of disfiguring telangiectases on the area dealt with. These starlike dilatations of the blood-vessels, when they occur in any number, may be very disfiguring, and there is this that is curious about them that in some cases a considerable time—several months—seems to have elapsed before they showed themselves.

There can be no doubt that the rays, exercise a selective power, affecting certain tissues destructively (as is well shown in their action upon certain forms of cancer), and it may be presumed that in the cases mentioned the dilatation of the cutaneous blood vessels has either been due to interference with the circulation by a form of scar contraction following the partial destruction of certain tissues around the vessels, or may even have been due to the destructive effects of the rays upon the walls of the vessels themselves, leading to their gradual dilatation under the pressure of the blood. But, however they are caused, they serve well to show how careful one must be in the use of an agent the nature of which we do not as yet fully understand.

A Dramatic Situation.

An unfortunate mishap recently befell a theatrical company touring in Queensland.

They could only muster one frock coat, which had to be used by the doctor and the villain of the piece in turn.

One night the manager borrowed a pair of handcuffs from the local police station. At the right dramatic moment they were clicked on the villain's wrists, amid loud applause.

Imagine the dismay when it was found that the key of the handcuffs had been forgotten, and the one and only frock coat was securely locked to the villain.

The doctor, who was in waiting in his shirt sleeves in the wings, had no alternative but to go on as he was. He was equal to the situation, however, and at once explained that he had driven in his haste through pelting rain and left his frock coat outside to be dried.—London Express.

Supply of Eggs.

The annual supply of eggs in the United States is said to be about 8,500,000,000, or more than 700,000,000 dozen, and their value is equal to that of the product of our gold and silver mines, says the New York Press. Some men eat two dozen eggs a day. Some do not eat two dozen in a year. They are supposed to render certain folk bilious. A raw egg may be digested in two hours, one soft boiled in three hours, hard boiled in three and a half, roasted in two and a quarter. Did you ever roast an egg before the fire? Place on top of it a straw, and when it is done the straw will make a half revolution. A well-roasted egg is a delicious morsel. In the days of wood fires it was more common to roast eggs than to boil them. Touchstone speaks of their being "ill-roasted, all on one side," and we are indebted to Pope for these lines.

THE ODE TRAFFIC IN ENGLAND.

Recent Utterances of English Poets Declared Unworthy.

The London Saturday Review says that "on a moderate estimate, which the editor of any daily paper will bear out, one hundred coronation odes were rejected to every one printed; a supposition which would bring the number of pairs of eyes that have rolled in a fine frenzy to three thousand or so." One may allow, this writer thinks, a modicum of inspiration to a large percentage of these, "whether they have been in a position to hallow their odes to the reverberate hills or have rhymed the substance of their leading articles." He finds in all the odes common attributes, for example: In an ode you must begin with either a vocative or an exclamation: "Mæcenas atavis edite regibus." But as "O Edward, the Seventh" sounds a little banal, the exclamation opening—the theory may be tested in the papers—is preterred, thus, "Sound, trumpets, sound; King Edward reigns!" This is followed with a review of English history for which Green's "Short History of the English people" has been found invaluable.

This writer, however, sees a serious side to all this ode concocting. "Throughout all these late years, full one would have thought of Elizabethan stuff, no poet has stumbled into utterance worthy of the force of the national sentiment behind him; and the cause may lie to a degree in the base service to which the muse is set." It is a formula with editors to say, "Your poem is good but does not 'hang on to anything,' " as if it were the part of a poem to be inspired by a newspaper paragraph. Rather, if it is dependent at all, it should Hang with gold chains about the feet of God.

Everywhere the muse is stimulated to be journalistic, to serve the moment, to write in the office, as it were. We must have, perhaps, salutations. Tennyson wrote some fine stuff and Mr. Watson has done well. But would Tennyson have tinkered to obey meteorological and chronological demands? and Mr. Watson who has written more fine than the rest, is of all our poets the one least in sympathy with the national sentiment." And what has this journalism extracted from the patriots. "Girls of the Golden City," the "sensational caterwauling of the music halls," and jerryman-dered odes. "What will posterity think of us? Not much; but if, according to the old metaphor, every century is an overloaded ship which in the last wreck will sink with most of its cargo it is a satisfaction to feel that the bales packed in the beginning are quite certain to perish. If on the other hand, as Bacon suggested, it is the light stuff that floats on the stream of time, happily in this case too these odes will sink."

Philippine Census.

Brigadier-General Joseph P. Sanger, who has been designated by Secretary Root to conduct the census taking in the Philippines, has had experience which makes him especially well qualified to perform the work. He served during the Spanish war and afterward directed the census of Cuba and Porto Rico. In the Philippines last year he succeeded General George W. Davis as inspector-general. His duties also included an investigation of all matters pertaining to the military branch of the Government in the Hawaiian Islands.

In his new undertaking General Sanger will be assisted by H. W. Gannett of the Geological Survey and Victor Olmstead of the Department of Labor. Twenty experts from the Census Bureau will also be assigned to aid in the work.
